Suggestions for use of the sentence strips:

Reading these sentence strips is a good way of practicing and reinforcing the new vocabulary. Encourage your students to read words in phrases, with the eye going ahead as the words are said aloud. Practicing the sentences on the strips will help fluency.

- The strips can be photocopied on tag and then cut out, or on plain paper for each child or group.
- The strips are good for buddy reading or partner reading. The children can take turns picking up a strip and reading it to the partner, who checks that the reading is accurate.
- The sheets could be made smaller on the photocopier, and the sentences in one lesson fit on a single sheet of paper to take home to read.
- The students can practice the strips from earlier lessons, too, and as they will be more familiar with this vocabulary this is a good fluency exercise.
- Use the sentence strips in small groups. Give each child a strip, and they can read the sentences in turn.
- The strips can be put in a pile and stapled on the left end so they can be 'opened' and read singly.
- Let the students sort the strips - putting all the strips with a special word into a group.
- Use highlighters to show the more difficult words.
- Practice printing the sentences in an exercise book.
- Take a sentence strip and illustrate it.

I ran to school with all my friends.

My grandma ran down to my house.

I want to play with my three friends.

Are there three people in your family?

My two friends ran to the store with me.

I have lots of good toys and games.

I have a game with boats and planes.

We went swimming and played a game.

I got games and toys for my birthday.

I saw something funny on TV yesterday.

She had very long hair and blue eyes.

It was time for school ten minutes ago!

There are millions of people living there.

There are millions of numbers in our town.

I like to hear about the time of dinosaurs.
